Since 1882, and for several decades thereafter, the First Baron Edmond de Rothschild, universally known in Israel as the "Father of the Yishuv" and as the "Well-known Benefactor", pioneered and single-handedly promoted the settlement and development of what became modern Israel.
Since Israel's independence, the second Baron Edmond de Rothschild actively participated in the creation and initial development of a modern economy for the new state, starting many enterprises such as the Israel Corporation and financing others, either directly or indirectly through Israel General Bank, a local bank largely owned and by the Edmond de Rothschild Group.
The Rothschild Group is the largest private banking group in the world in continuous single family ownership. The Group is today active in five major areas: Investment Management, Banking, Investment Banking, global privatization advice, and dealing in Gold Bullion.

Christians and Muslims cannot marry Jews in Israel, and if they are married elsewhere, the marriage is not recognized by the rabbinical court in Israel.(WASHINGTON REPORT ON MIDDLE EAST AFFAIRS, June 1993, p.75)
The organized Jewish community is the only ethnic or religious community in the United States that continues to attempt to limit outmarriage or discourage conversions; and intermarriage (between Jews and non-Jews)." "Edsel Ford and Robert Sorenson, high-ranking officials of Ford Motor Company, served as directors of Ford Werke A.G. throughout the Nazi Third Reich." 4 The fact-sheet alleges that the company made immense profits providing the German army with tracked vehicles and other trucks. This was because it worked at peak capacity for many years, and did not have to pay wages to many of its workers. Unlike most American facilities in Germany, Ford was not taken over by the German government during the war. Ford and Hitler seems to have had a friendly relationship. "On Henry Ford's 75th birthday in 1938, Hitler awarded Ford the 'Great Cross of the German Order of the Eagle for Henry Ford'; publication of the notorious anti-Semitic pamphlet, The International Jew, a Worldwide Problem' (Berlin, 1921)." 2000-JUL-27: The Evangelical Church in Germany (EKD) is the main Protestant denomination in Germany. During the 1930's, they cooperated extensively with Nazism. However, a small number of theologians, clergy and laity left to form the Confessing Church which opposed the Nazis. During the Nazi era, the EKD and the main Protestant social-service organization, Diakonisches Werk exploited slave laborers in church parishes, and diocesan institutions such as church-run hospitals. The EKD and DW have admitted that they used slave labor and agreed to contribute 10 million Deutschemarks (about 4.7 million in U.S. dollars) to the main compensation fund, thus increasing the fund by about 0.06%.
2000-JUL-27: The Roman Catholic Church in Germany has refused to contribute to the fund. They have stated that there is no evidence that slave laborers were used in Roman Catholic institutions. "Moreover, a German television station is about to broadcast allegations that forced laborers from Poland and Ukraine were sent to work at a Catholic monastery and a theological seminary, and that prisoners from a concentration camp were forced to work in a church institution."

The Kirchentag convened for the fourth time in Frankfurt (the previous occasions being 1956, 1975 and 1987). Due attention was given to "The Power of Money" in this international banking centre. The relationship between the Kirchentag and banks is more relaxed now. Back in 1987 the Kirchentag closed its account at the Deutsche Bank because it maintained business links with South Africa, but this time Bible studies were held at the Deutsche Bank. One of the numerous silver-coloured "Christ Figures" created by artist Manfred Stumpf stood on the roof of the Deutsche Bank's skyscraper. Ernst Welteke, President of the Bundesbank (German Central Bank), spoke at the "Forum on Money".
